DEMOCRATIC TICKET.

Election first Tuesday in November, 1890.

For Governor:

JOHN P. BUCHANAN, of Rutherford County.

For Congress:

BENJAMIN A. ENLOE, of Madison County.

For State Senator:

J. MONROE CASTLE,
of Benton County.

For Representative:

JOHN R. LASHLEE.

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 17, 1890.

A FEW sanguine Republicans, whose desires are parental to their mental emanations, state that KELLEY is the man for BAXTER to defeat, that BUCHANAN is no Democrat, and the people are finding it out. What nonsense! Many of these same Republicans, deep down in the innermost recesses of that organ they call a heart, intend to vote for Hon. JOHN P. BUCHANAN themselves, not caring to throw away their votes on a man who is bound hand and foot by the Hour ring.

It seems that the chairman of the State Democratic Executive Committee in his appointments for speaking has ignored Camden altogether. Two years ago we were left out of the list, and we confidently expected that the committee would send us some one to arouse our enthusiasm during the present campaign. The Democratic party has an abundance of good speakers, and the field is not so great that some one of the numerous orators can arrange it to include Camden.

HON. JOHN P. BUCHANAN opened his canvass in West Tennessee at McKenzie last Wednesday. The throngs who heard him were very favorably impressed with his zeal for the cause of which he is the standard-bearer, and his address was full of facts and figures that carried conviction with them. He was followed by Hon. B. A. ENLOE, whose arraignment of REED and the Republican party was bitter in the extreme. He proved his title to the renewed confidence and respect of his constituents and that no man in the country better deserves the endorsement of the people.

DR. D. C. KELLEY, Prohibition candidate for Governor, has been suspended for six months from the Methodist Episcopal Church South, by the annual conference in session at Pulaski, on the charge that he abandoned his charge (Gallatin station, East Nashville district, Tennessee conference) about August 1, 1890, without the consent of the annual conference, to run for Governor of Tennessee. All admit that the committee did their duty. It is now in order for the doctor to retire from the gubernatorial race in favor of Mr. BAXTER, if he desires to escape another and more convincing suspension in November.

No Extra Session.

The report is gaining ground that the President is afraid that a proclamation calling for an extra session of Congress will injure the party. There are several bills on the calendar, and the radical members of the Senate are anxious to pass the force bill, the Republicans in the House desire to pass a reapportionment bill based on the report of PORTER's fraudulent census, and REED and CANNON wish to pass several subsidy bills involving millions of dollars, before the 4th of next March. And while the President is inclined to favor it, the Secretary of State is opposed to an extra session on the ground that if it was called before the elections it would be construed by the country to mean an admission by the Administration that there was no chance of the Republicans being able to control the next House of Representatives; if the Democrats elected a majority of the next House at the ensuing elections, and the Republicans should thereafter assume to call an extra session, the country would denounce the Administration, claim that the force bill and other measures of the Republican leaders had been repudiated by the people, and now the Administration was calling Congress in extra session in order to defeat the popular verdict.

Mr. BLAINE believes that REED and his Congress has done more to injure the prospects of Republican success in 1892 than all other agencies combined. The people believe the country should render a verdict against the oppressive burdens the Republican Congress has imposed upon them, and they realize that the only way to defeat further obnoxious legislation is to send a Democratic majority to the next House of Representatives.

For State Senator.

The announcement of Mr. WILLIAM CARAWAY as a candidate to represent the counties of Benton, Carroll, and Decatur in the next Tennessee General Assembly, appears in this issue of THE CHRONICLE.

As Mr. CARAWAY is Republican in politics, and the nominee of that party for the above position THE CHRONICLE, of course, does not endorse his candidacy, and, with the following biographical sketch of the gentleman, we will leave him in the hands of his party:

MR. CARAWAY was born in Smith County, this State, in 1836, and was reared on a farm. At an early age he came to Benton County, and in 1858 engaged in the mercantile business at Big Sandy, and has conducted same ever since. He was formerly a Democrat, and as such offered himself as a candidate for the legislature in 1886, but he withdrew from the race, and shortly thereafter went over to the Republicans. He upholds and contributes liberally to the support of institutions for the public good, and is justly recognized as one among the most reliable citizens and business men of Benton County.

THE report that the Republican National Committee has sent $30,000 to Decatur, Ala., to defeat, if possible, Mr. WHEELER, Democrat, for Congress, may be regarded as a decided pointer that the Republicans are going in to win on the strength of boodle, and while the purchasable vote in the South is Republican, the committee has been induced to believe that money can effect a Republican victory in Mr. WHEELER's district. But the agricultural and other interests of the South have been made to bear the burden of increased taxation too long for her toiling sons to accept a bribe to assist in continuing in power the party that is owned by the manufacturers of New England and the money sharks of Wall street.

LISTEN to the breezes from the political field and hear them whisper how thousands and hundreds of thousands of Democratic voters from "Carter to Shelby," and from the north to the south, will vote for JOHN P. BUCHANAN and the straight ticket. "They are coming, Father ABRAHAM, a hundred thousand strong," and will be the vanguard of our majority in November.

THE legislature of Ohio met in extraordinary session Monday to consider such measures of reform that will secure for Cincinnati a better system of municipal government, and to amend other laws so as to add a certain township in Hamilton County, which had been ignored, to some Congressional district. The prompt action of Governor CAMPBELL in this matter has proven that he is vigilant in the interests of the State, and performs his duty without regard to the results to himself or party.
